Plexus Announce New Look Catastrophic Loss Team

Plexus Law, part of the Parabis Group, has today announced a new look to its Catastrophic Loss Team to be headed up by Kathryn Oldfield.

The team of 11, including leading industry experts such as Jane Hall, Andy Trott and Peter Flood, will now be deployed across four office locations in London, Leeds, Colchester and Croydon. These locations ensure the team deliver a swift and effective response appropriate to the unique nature of these claims.

The team is well versed in dealing with a broad range of complex, high value cases. Every catastrophic incident requires a bespoke approach and the Plexus team has been designed in such a way as to leverage enhanced customer service whilst mitigating indemnity spend and protecting brand identity.

To mark the announcement of the new look team, Plexus Law will be hosting a drinks party for clients at the Grocers Hall, London on Thursday 11th December.

Speaking about the new look team, Tim Roberts, Senior Partner of Plexus Law, commented:

“We have an excellent track record in dealing with catastrophic claims running into many millions of pounds. The team has a number of innovative solutions to deliver to the market. Many of these require a holistic approach to claims which Plexus, as part of the multi-disciplinary Parabis Group, will be well positioned to deliver in tandem with our sister company, Argent Rehabilitation”.

“The new arrangement of our Catastrophic Team consolidates our capabilities in this area under the stewardship of a highly experienced management team and provides a fantastic platform from which we can deliver enhanced service to our clients and grow this area of our business”.
