Parabis Group Announces Consolidation of Defendant Law Firms to Single Plexus Brand

The Parabis Group is delighted to announce yet another step in its growth strategy with the migration of Badhams Law, Praxis Partners and GW Law into the Plexus Law brand. Plexus Law is a trading name of Parabis Law LLP.

GW Law has already commenced trading as Plexus Law and Praxis Partners will make the switch with effect from w/c 19th Jan. Badhams Law will come on line with effect from 1st February.

With an already well-established marketplace reputation, the range of services and levels of expertise within Plexus Law will be further enhanced through the creation of a single defendant brand. The Group is also at an advanced stage of consolidating its claimant law firms and further announcements will be issued in due course.

Alongside the two legal service offerings, the Group will continue to provide a range of professional services to the insurance industry through its Argent brands – Argent Liability Adjusters, Argent Rehabilitation and Argent Health and Safety. Completing the Groups' suite of offerings will be Parabis Limited, which provides outsourced claims handling solutions.

Speaking about the changes, Tim Oliver, CEO, of The Parabis Group commented:

“Our reasons for undertaking these changes are simply that the Group has grown so extensively in recent times that multiple brands are now starting to create confusion in the marketplace. I firmly believe that implementation of our brand consolidation programme will help convey our size and experience and make it easier for everyone to understand the Group proposition. By being able to demonstrate our ‘critical mass’ we will also, be able to attract the best talent in to the Group when undertaking any recruitment exercises”.

“Throughout the consolidation process and beyond, it is imperative that we remain totally focussed on ensuring that there is no loss of business continuity to our clients. I am confident that the changes we are making will place the Group in a robust position to forge ahead with further growth and innovations”.
